Dear Francois:

I am sorry that our plans for flying through Paris are now even more disorganized than before and that in any case they would conflict with your course. Our original intention was to hasten back to Madison in order to make final preparations for moving out to Stanford by the end of this academic semester. We have tentative bookings on the Pan American flight 115, leaving Le Bourget at 6:00 P.M. on Wednesday, December, 17. We might arrive at Le Bourget from Nice at 11:35 A.M. or at Orly from Milan at 1300 P.M. However these plans are so uncertain I would hesitate to ask you to rely on them and in the circumstances it would perhaps be most practical to let the occasion go. It is equally possible that I will be returning even more hastily, non-stop from Stockholm, in view of the growing pressure of time.

I look forward to the possibility of a more leisurely travel this coming spring.

It will be fun to be so close to the western division of the Institut Pasteur at Berkeley within a few months.

Yours sincerely, as ever,

Joshua Lederberg
